Massachusetts Agricultural Fairs 1989

Dear Friends of Massachusetts Agriculture,

Agriculture is alive and well in Massachusetts. That fact is never more apparent than at the more than 100 agricultural fairs, shows, and exhibits that will be held throughout the Commonwealth during the 1989-90 season.

Our 6,200 farms represent a valued segment of our strong economy, as well as a link with our state's heritage. People have been farming in Massachusetts since the Pilgrims landed. Our farmers carry on this tradition using innovative 21st-century techniques.

Agriculture in Massachusetts generates about $400 million per year, provides upwards of 60,000 jobs and helps fuel the state's $3 billion-a-year food processing industry. There are other benefits, such as the more than 600,000 acres of working landscape kept open by agriculture.

One of the best ways to get a first-hand look at the importance of our farm-and-food industry is to visit a country fair or any other one of the special agricultural events on this season's calendar. These are enjoyable and educational family outings.

Together with the state's agricultural and horticultural groups, I encourage and welcome you to share the fun and knowledge that can be found at these events.

We'll see you at the fairgrounds!

Sincerely,

Michael S. Dukakis
